

Testimonial about Medifab's MultiLink Dynamic Arm

How the MultiLink has changed my life!

Before I received the MultiLink Dynamic Arm, I had difficulty lifting my left arm to my face; and the movement wasn't fluid. Half the time I was lucky not to knock myself out from lack of control and in turn it would make me so frustrated. This is due to having an undiagnosed Neuromuscular Condition; I'm currently waiting for test results.

I found that I would often avoid certain activities because I knew that I would have problems taking part, even eating was an issue. Where before I would have to lean over the table to eat my meal, now I can sit upright comfortably and feed myself like everyone else. It has made a huge difference to my approach to joining in.

After having the device for a few days, I found I had pain in my shoulder and arm, which I was warned about beforehand. This was due to the arm getting more movement than it was used to, but found that it receded soon after.

I feel that my left wrist is better positioned when in the device, and feels more comfortable. I think that this is down to both the settings on the gutter and wrist support, and the lessened strain on the wrist when tune the device over the following days to what I felt was the optimum settings for my personal needs. I put this down to Bruce from MediFab and his clear demonstration and advice.

Where before I would have to lean over the table to eat my meal, now I can sit upright comfortably and feed myself like everyone else. It has made a huge difference to my approach to joining in.

performing each movement.

After having the MultiLink Dynamic Arm for a week, movement of my arm is much less of a struggle, and actions have become more automatic. I have caught myself a few times doing movements that before would not have been possible.

Being shown how the bands and settings worked, it was great to be able to adjust and fine

I personally believe that the MultiLink arm device will assist me to remain in my home and keep what independence I have. This is of paramount importance to me.

Amy can now drink without having to use a straw!

Medifab thanks Amy for her testimonial and story.

